Seminar discusses securing a mortgage

Multimedia

A free seminar and open house event on securing a mortgage amid the bailout, is being offered in Greenwich on Thursday, October 23, 2008.

The event is being sponsored by York Construction and Development, an award-winning builder of custom and spec homes, Jesika Estepanian Architecture, Coldwell Banker Real Estate and Greenwich Bank and Trust. The seminar and house tour will be held at one of York Construction and Development's recently completed homes at 9 Boulder Brook Road in midcountry Greenwich, from 5 to 9 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 23.

Light refreshments and hors d'oeuvres will be served; special guest speaker will be Lisa Edson, personal mortgage banker with Greenwich Bank and Trust, who will talk about the financial bailout and what it means to home buyers in the Greenwich market.

This event is free; all are welcome. Call 698-3460 for more information.

"While the market has been tumultuous and mortgage news disheartening, there is hope and opportunity to secure mortgage financing," noted Lisa Edson, who will speak about mortgage options and financing at the Oct. 23 event. "Homes in this area have pretty much held their value and are still a good investment, so financing options may be more readily available for those looking to purchase a home in today's 'buyer's market.'"
